Congregation of the Sacred Hearts United States Province, Provincial Archives

1124 7th Avenue
Honolulu, Hawaii 96816
(808) 732-5565 or (808) 282-8308

Description of Holdings

The Provincial Archives of The Congregation of the Sacred Hearts (SS.CC.) United States Province contains the collective memory of a religious community of Roman Catholic priests and brothers. The records, which chronicle the history, decisions, activities, and personnel of the Province, span the years 1825 to 2011. They consist of meeting minutes, provincial reports, decrees, correspondence, diaries, sacramental registers, financial records, real estate transactions, personnel files and directories, seminary and formation records, site maps, architectural drawings, photographs and negatives, audio-visual materials, electronic files, scrapbooks, commemorative booklets, publications, artifacts, relics, and ephemera. The size of the collection is approximately 250 cubic feet. Languages represented within the collection include Dutch, English, French, Hawaiian, Italian, Latin, and Spanish. Of special interest are original letters and objects related to Father Damien; late nineteenth to early twentieth century photographs of the Kalaupapa Community; and early Hawaiian language publications. Access to some of the records in the collection is restricted and requires permission of the Provincial Superior.

229 Queen Emma Square
Honolulu, Hawaii 96813
(808) 536-7776 or (808) 282-8308

Description of Holdings

The Diocesan Archives of The Episcopal Church in Hawaii collects, preserves, and accesses historical documents related to the Anglican presence in the Hawaiian Islands and its missions overseas. Collection materials date from the establishment of the Church in 1862, by King Kamehameha IV and Queen Emma, to the present day. The collection consists of papers of the Bishops, Journals of convention, constitutions and by-laws, meeting minutes, committee reports, correspondence, parish histories, sacramental registers, photographs, scrapbooks, diocesan publications, and a few artifacts. The size of the collection measures approximately 55 cubic feet. The predominant language represented in the collection is English, though there are a few documents and publications in the Hawaiian language. Of special interest are the baptismal, confirmation, and marriage records of Hawaiian royalty and members of the Court.

Punahou School

1601 Punahou Street
Honolulu, Hawaii 96822
(808) 943-3225. Fax (808) 944-5766

Description of Holdings

Punahou School, an independent college preparatory day school founded in 1841, is located in lower Mānoa Valley, a residential area of the city of Honolulu, O'ahu, Hawai'i. With an enrollment of over 3,750 in grades K-12, Punahou School is the largest coeducational, independent school on a single campus in the United States.

The Punahou School Archives is located in the Lum Hawaiiana Room of Cooke Library. Starting as a loose collection of gifts, records and valuable materials handed down between administrations and librarians for decades, the Archives began to formalize in the 1950s. It comprises school publications, photographic and multimedia images, artifacts, institutional records and manuscript collections which explain the historical events, growth and development of Punahou School.

Managed by a professional archivist, the Archives is available for use by the Punahou community and private research by appointment.

Description of Holdings

The Hawaiian & Pacific Collections were founded as a single collection in 1908. To better manage the library's expanding holdings in both Hawai'i and the Pacific, in 1969 the integrated collection was separated and two unique collections—the Hawaiian and Pacific Collections—were created. Since their inception, each collection has maintained an expansive acquisitions policy, collecting primary and secondary source materials in all languages, subjects and formats, across all eras and from all countries of origin. Both collections are the largest collections of published materials on these geographical areas.

Hawaiian Collection:

The Hawaiian Collection houses primary and secondary source materials related to Hawai'i. Emphasis is placed on materials relating to the indigenous people of Hawai'i, but all immigrant communities are represented. The strengths of the Collection reside in its secondary and published source materials. Both monographs and serials are acquired broadly; serial holdings include current and historical newspapers, magazines, journals, directories, and corporate and organizational annual reports and newsletters. Primary source materials include letters, diaries, notebooks, and other materials of Hawaiian monarchs, missionaries, sugar planters, scientists, government officials, travelers and authors who visited Hawai'i. Oral histories, Hawaiian sheet music, microfilmed newspapers, photographs, maps and audiovisual materials, including television programs taped off air. University of Hawai'i publications. Selected government documents from Hawaiian kingdom, through current state and county governments. Selected websites. Among archival collections are Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association Plantation Archives and Archives of the Hawaiian Pineapple Company/Dole Corporation.

Pacific Collection:

The Pacific Collection houses primary and secondary source materials related to the cultural regions of Micronesia, Melanesia and Polynesia (excluding Hawai'i). Pacific Collection holdings complement those of the Hawaiian Collection, in both the humanities and natural sciences, particularly in the areas of history, geography, anthropology and linguistics. Hallmarks include the world's most complete holdings of post-World War II government documents published in the island nations. Research materials of noted Pacific scholars; diaries; correspondence and other unpublished, primary source documents are actively collected. Roughly 100,000 photographs are held in the collection, with more than 16,000 available for viewing online. Major archival collections include the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands Archives. The University of Hawai'i Library is a founding member of the Pacific Manuscript Bureau, and houses all microfilm produced in this cooperative venture to preserve archival records concerning the history of the Pacific Islands. Subscriptions are maintained to all newspapers published within the region, with papers actively microfilmed for long-term preservation.

Room 502
2550 McCarthy Mall
Honolulu, Hawaii 96822
(808) 956-2849. Fax (808) 956-5968

Description of Holdings

The Jean Charlot Collection is a major archive of documents and art works relating to the artist and writer Jean Charlot and to those with whom he came in contact over his long career in France, Mexico, the United States and the Pacific. Since the initial donation, the Collection has been considerably expanded by further gifts by Mrs. Jean Charlot and from Charlot's collaborators, such as the important fine art printer Lynton Kistler. Moreover, the Collection has been planned as the nucleus around which further related collections can be added. The papers of Juliette May Fraser are now housed in the Charlot Collection.

The Jean Charlot Collection contains materials from every stage of Charlot's life and from every area of his activity.

Art Works by Jean Charlot

Oil paintings, mural drawings, sketchbooks and a nearly complete collection of his prints.

Charlot's Personal Library

Over 1,500 items, including his own publications, many works by Paul Claudel, most of them signed, rare Mexican imprints, some possibly unique surviving copies and many books inscribed to Jean Charlot from their authors.

Writings, Both Published and Unpublished by Jean Charlot

Among the unpublished materials can be found an article in French on the Mexican artist David Alfaro Siqueiros, written in the 1920s; a chapter written for Charlot's The Mexican Mural Renaissance but not published; a large project on the Apocalypse realized in collaboration with the major French poet Paul Claudel; unpublished research, including transcriptions of the Journal of Desire Louis Maigret, 19th century Pacific missionary and first Roman Catholic Bishop of Hawai'i; a full-length English language play on a pre-contact Hawaiian subject; and poetry written from Charlot's youth into his middle years.

Private Documents

Including Charlot's daily journal, kept from the early 1920s until his death; tape-recorded interviews; correspondence with noted artists and scholars; and reminiscences on various people and events in his life.

Art Works by Other Artists

Including Orozco, Siqueiros, Rivera, Edward Weston, Ben Shahn, Louis Elshemius, numerous artists from Hawai'i, prints by Posada, Daumier and Mexican folk art.

Documents by or Relating to Other Artists and Scholars

Including correspondence, Diego Rivera's translation of an early French article by Charlot, Max Ernst's notes for a lecture on his own art and notes for a project by Paul Claudel.

Honolulu, Hawaii 96822

Description of Holdings

The Russian Collections of the University of Hawaii reflect the University's curricular and research priorities, with Asia and the Pacific regions figuring prominently in the 60,000 volume collection of Russian area books, serials, and microform holdings. These resources are used not only by UH students and faculty, but also by a constituency of international researchers. Patricia Polansky is the Russian Bibliographer.

Collection development has focused on Siberia, Soviet/Russian Far East, and Russia's relationship with the countries and peoples of Asia and the Pacific. Systematic acquisitions began in 1937 when Dr. Klaus Mehnert accepted a position on the university faculty. Mehnert had studied Russia in Asia and the Pacific at the University of Berlin under a pioneer in the field, Professor Otto Hoetzsch, and had developed this interest in post-doctoral study at the University of California at Berkeley, where Robert J. Kerner was offering a Northeast Asia seminar. At the University of Hawaii, Mehnert's initiatives were continued in the Department of History by John A. White, and then by White's student John J. Stephan; and in the Russian language and literature program by Ella Lury Wiswell; and in the Library by Patricia Polansky; and others such as Robert Valliant.

In addition to Russian history, language, and literature courses, UH has offered geography, philosophy, and religion, generating acquisitions of Russian materials on a wide variety of topics. There are also Russian holdings in oceanography, volcanology, and tropical agriculture. The collection reflects the interests of faculty who were here in the past: Roland Fuchs in Geography, Ella Lury Wiswell and Larry Heien in Russian literature and language, Rex Wade and Donald Raleigh in History. Thanks to the latter two professors we have a strong collection on the Russian Revolutions of 1917. See article by Patricia Polansky "Who Created Us?" or SEEIR, 2008, V.9, no.2, p.174-225.

Current UH faculty members include Russian language/literature Professors James Brown and Virginia Bennett, and Russian historian Matthew Romaniello, and Lurana O'Malley in the Department of Theater.

The Center maintains two research collections: a labor law library and a labor history archive. Materials in the archive include various clippings, correspondences, newsletters, pamphlets, books, videos and artifacts. Materials are for use at the Center only and will not be loaned out. However, a copy machine is available and materials (within reason) may be duplicated at no cost.

To access the labor history archive an appointment must be arranged in advance with the Director (call 689-2760). First time or inexperienced users of the Law Library are strongly advised to make an advance appointment as well so that CLEAR staff can instruct the user on the proper use of the indices and files.
